WEDNESDAY EVENING, APRIL 19, 1882.

Interred Alive.

In the latter part of March a man named James Gilliland, residing in the Sixth Ward of New Brunswick, N. J., died after a brief illness. He was a carpet weaver by trade and was well-known in the neighborhood. Building.

R. Bell's Sons, 61 King street. thizing friends who were anxious to look once more on their departed comrade. There was a peculiar appearance about the body, which was the subject of comment, and many of the visitors refused to believe that life had departed. Even after the body had been prepared for burial and inclosed in a coffin there were none of the ordinary appearances found in a corpse, and Gilliland's friends were greatly agitated over the matter, many of them believing that he was only in a trance. So strong was this belief that physicians were called in to make an examination. They found the body slightly warm and having none of the chilly feeling to the touch which is always found in dead bodies; the face was somewhat flushed, and the supposed dead man resembled a person in a deep sleep more than a mass of lifeless clay. The doctors, however, after a critical examination, pronounced Gilliand dead, and the funeral took place the following day, the interment being it the cemetery. Last week a brother of Gilliand came to New Last week a brother of Gilliland came to New Brunswick to make an examination, baying heard that there were suspicions that the man was not dead when the burial took place. He proceeded to the cemetery yesterday in company with a man to reopen the grave. When the coffin was reached the lid was carefully removed, and, to the greathorror of the man, he discovered indubitable evidence that his brother had been entombed while in a transa and had afterwards recovered conin a trance, and had afterwards recovered con-sciousness. The body was found lying on one side, with the face terribly scratched, as though done while in agony. It is thought that the unfortunate man, on recovering consciousness, en-deavored to free himself from his collin, and that a terrible struggle for life took place, the hands being horribly lacerated, while the face plainly showed signs of terror. The body was immediately reburied. Last evening the family of the unfortunate man refused to give any information on the subject, and the cemetery authorities were likewise reticent .- N. Y. Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations without. Hence, to cure the disease the cause must be removed, and in no other way can a cure ever be effected. WAR-NER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just this principle. It realizes that 95 PER CENT.

of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon these great organs, both as a food and restorer, and, by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system. healty Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; for the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal.
